Rhausler Inc. announces successful conclusion of Legal Matters

Fremont, California, November 21, 2025 - Rhausler, Inc., the manufacturer of state of the art anterior cervical implants, is pleased to announce the successful conclusion of the trial portion related to missing Rhausler, Inc. corporate profits. A suit filed in the Superior Court of California, San Mateo¹ alleging mismanagement and fraud has ended favorably. An interim settlement was obtained in 2021, and then substantial damages to Rhausler and its shareholders were awarded at the conclusion of the trial in 2025. Additional final legal actions are anticipated in June 2026 to obtain the non-dischargeable status of all the court awards.

The suit was based only on activity that occurred prior to the reorganization of Rhausler, including installation of a new management team in the fall of 2022. The CEO of Rhausler, Fred H. Geisler, M.D., Ph.D., said, "Rhausler is pleased that the court found in favor of the company and is now looking forward to focusing on company growth and exciting new product development projects to complement its proprietary spinal medical device product line."
